THE ADORATION OF THE SHEPHERDS

Nit de Vetlla (Watch-Night)
Nativity-song of Mediæval Catalonia (XV Century)

Original (in Catalan)

Esta nit es nit de vetlla ;
ha nascut d'una donzella—
La miran y fa sol
un infant com una estrelia.
La Kirie eleyson!
Los pastors la'n van a veure ;
al coll porten una ovella
La miran y fa sol
a'n el bras fruita novella.
La Kirie eleyson!
Porten fruita y ovella
per donar a la partera
La miran y fa sol
per que'n sigui mes lletera.
La Kirie eleyson!

Literal Translation

This night is watch-night ;
there has been born from a maiden
(Behold, she shines like the sunlight!)
an infant as bright as a star.
(O Lord, have mercy upon us!)
The shepherds come to see her,
bearing each a lambkin upon his shoulder
(Behold, she shines like the sunlight!)
and an armful of fresh fruit.
(O Lord, have mercy upon us!)
They carry fruit and lambkins to give them to the young mother
(Behold, she shines like the sunlight!)
so that she might take strength to nourish her Babe.
(O Lord, have mercy upon us!)

THE simple melody and naïve words are very typical of the Spanish peasant. The little admiring exclamation, "La miran y fa sol," might well be imagined as being derived from mediæval Christmas miracle-plays, when the Virgin and her Babe were impersonated in the Manger. (Such liturgical dramas were frequently played in mediæval Spain and are still given in some villages in Northern Spain nowadays.) The "Kirie eleyson," which the peasants remember from church-services (it is one of the well-authenticated "Kiries" of the mediæval church) but the meaning of which they do not understand, comes as a refrain to each verse, even though it has no logical sense. The choral setting for eight-part chorus (by Kurt Schindler) follows the melody as collected by Señorita D<sup>a</sup> Julita Farnés and printed in the dissertation on "Religious Folk-Song," by Don Lluís Millet.
