The Scarlet Letter.

Opera in three Acts

by

WALTER DAMROSCH.

Op. 1.

Words by George Parsons Lathrop
after Hawthorne's Romance.

Vocal Score by the Composer.

Persons Represented.

Arthur . . . . . Tenore.	Bellingham . . . . . Basso.
Hester . . . . . Soprano.	Brackett . . . . . Basso.
Chillingworth . . . . Baritone.	A Shipmaster . . . . . Basso.
Wilson . . . . . Basso.

First Act.

(The Market-Place, Boston, with Prison at L., a rosebush in bloom growing by the door. At back, a Church or Meeting-House. At R., the Town-Hall, and near it the Pillory, R.C. Openings on either side of the Meeting-House, giving a view of Boston Harbor.

Puritan men and women, entering through these streets and at sides, assemble in excitement. Master Brackett, the Jailer, with a company of Soldiers, stands near the Prison door.)

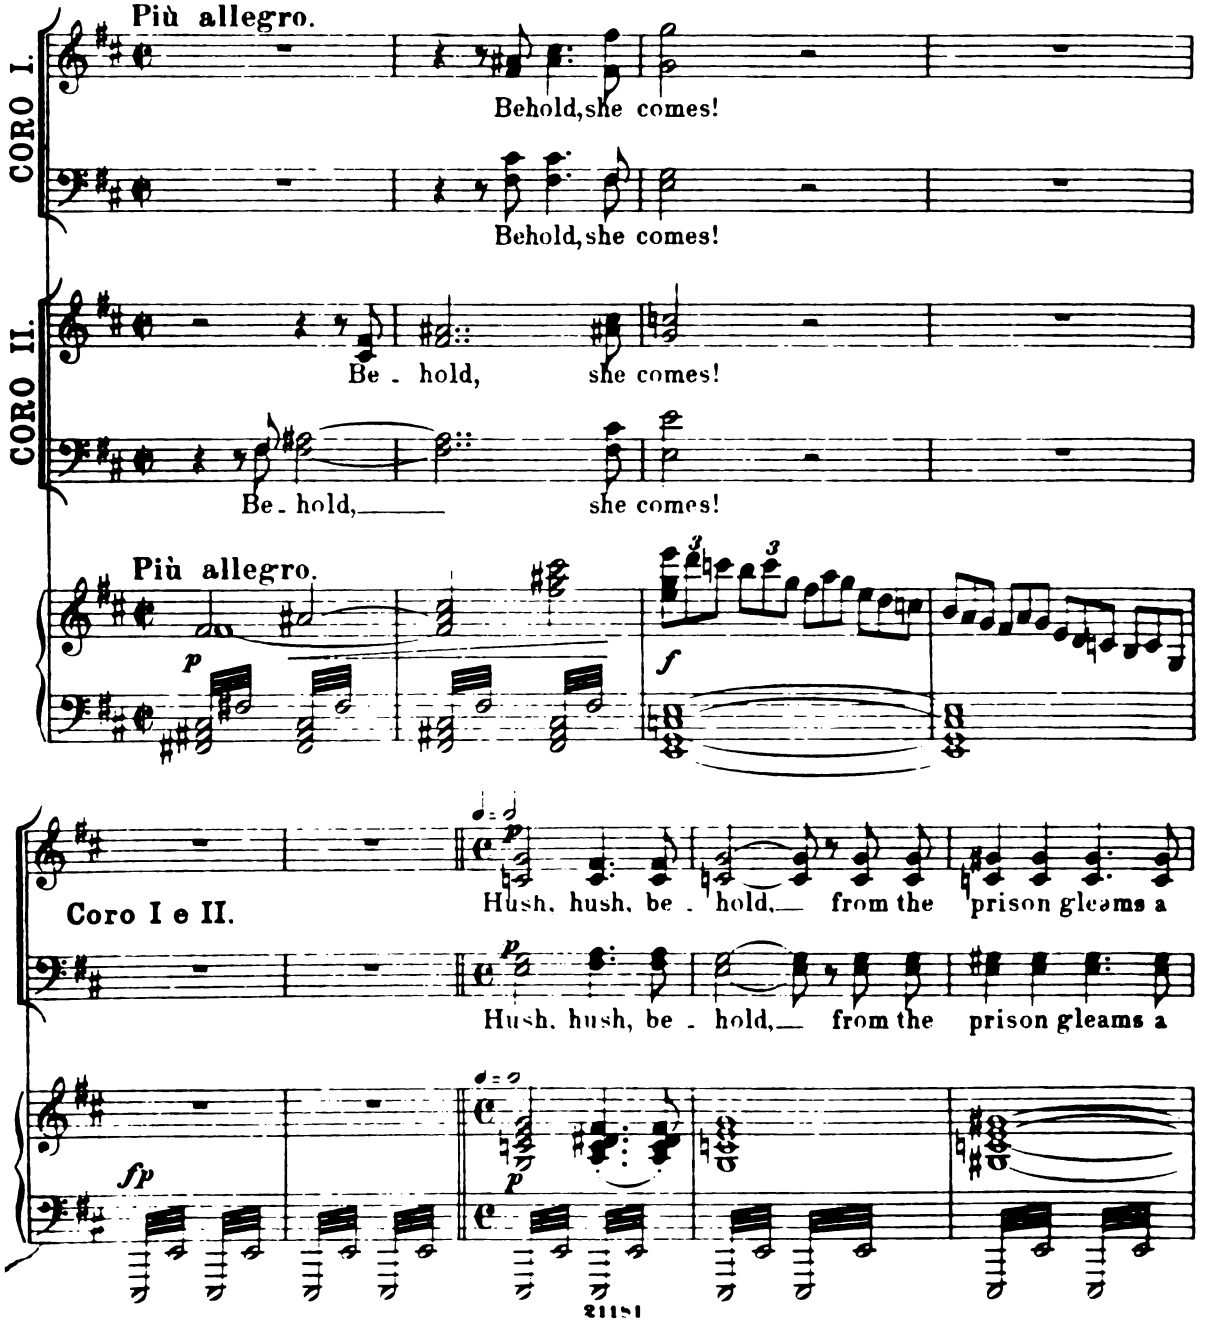
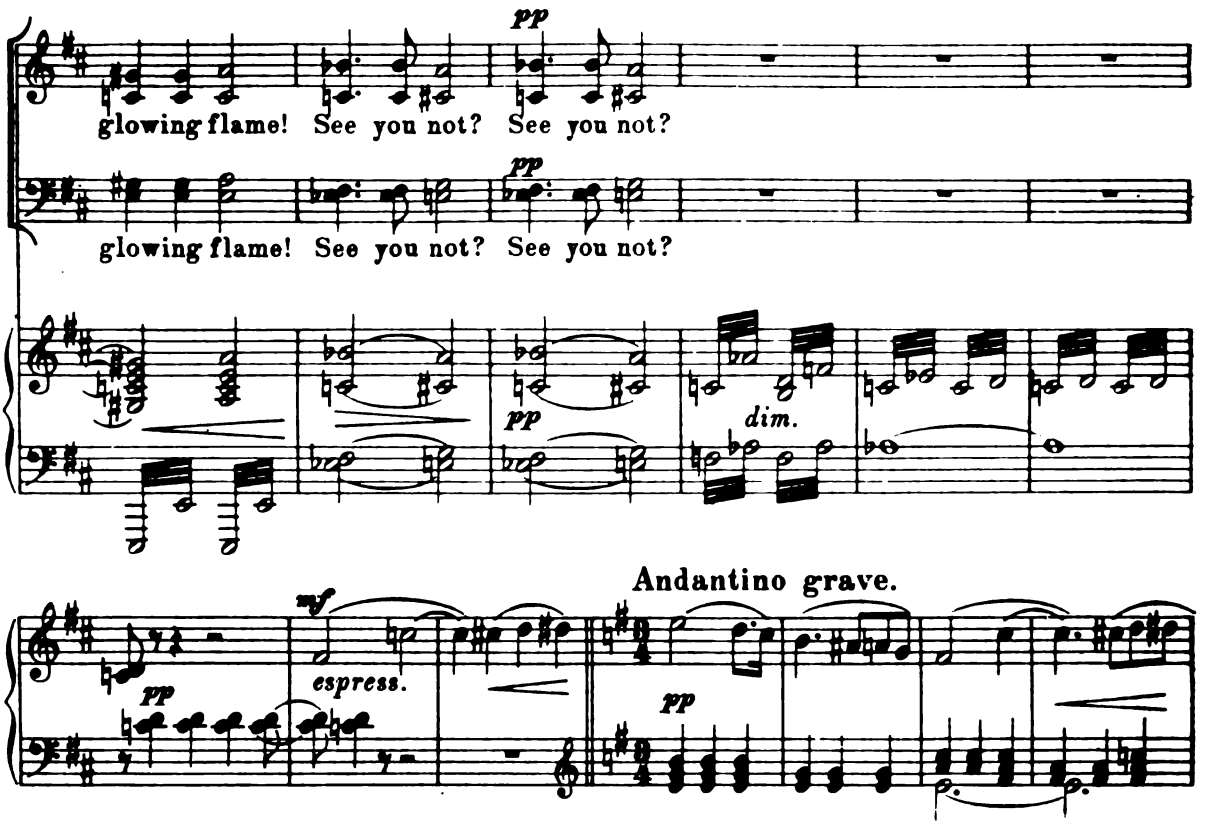
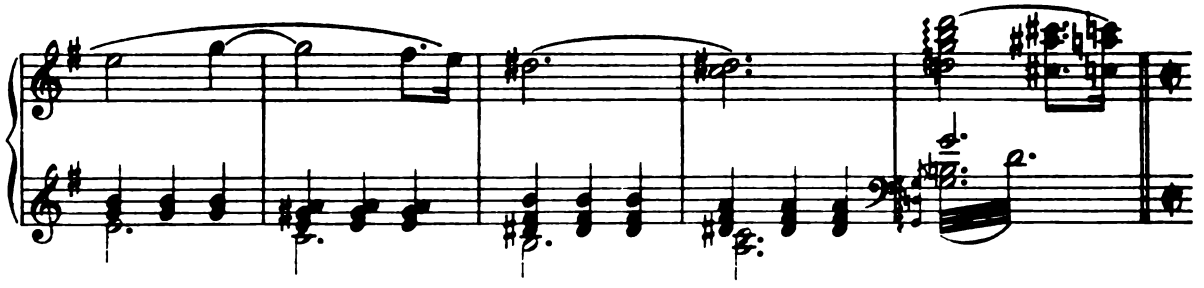
(The prison door opens. Crowd subsides into momentary hush. In the dark shadow of the corridor within the prison door a red glow is seen proceeding from a lantern hanging there. The soldiers form a lane through the crowd from the prison door to the pillory.)





(Enter from prison-door a jailer followed after a brief pause by Hester. She stands for a moment on the door-step, silent, dignified, yet woe-begone. Hester, accompanied by Brackett, crosses stage towards the pillory. Some of the crowd point at the Scarlet Letter on her breast. Others turn away or shield their eyes as though horror-stricken and blinded by it.)



Chill. (roused by their cries, moves tho where he can see Hester, and gazes at her, at first curiously).

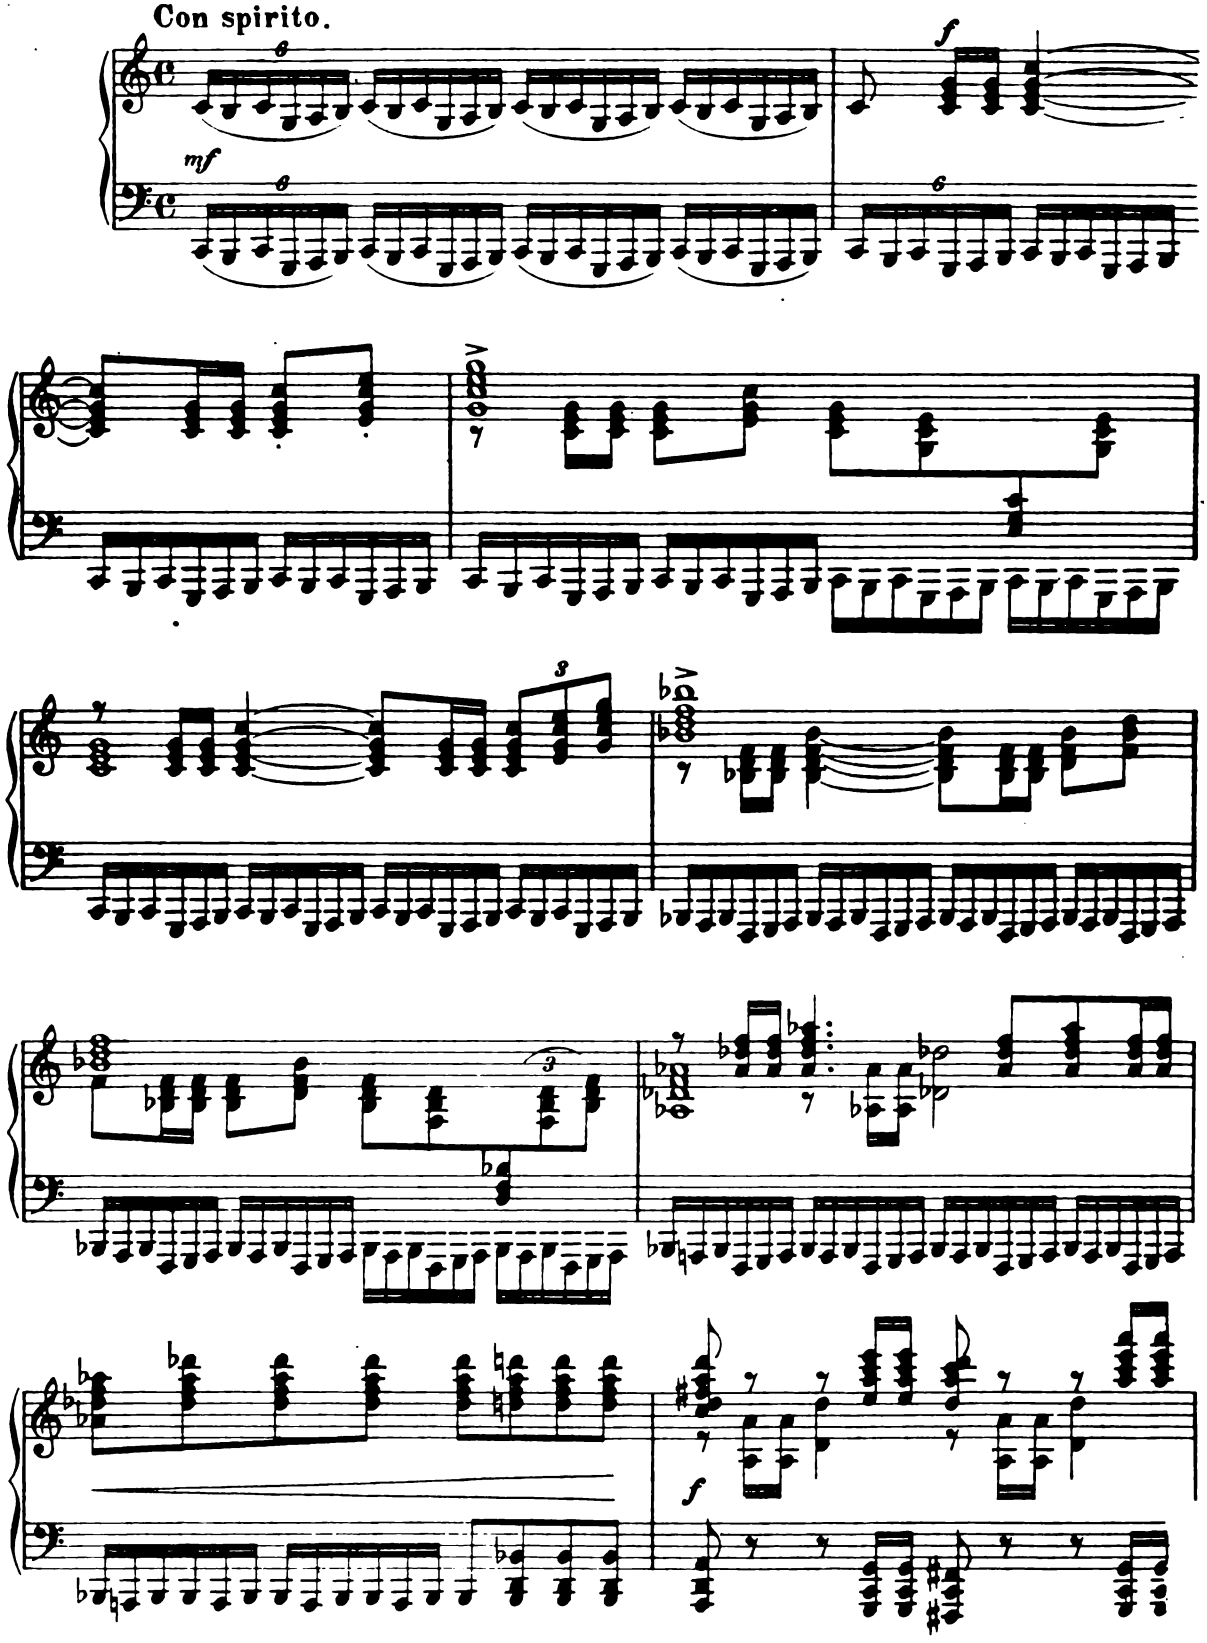
Third Act.



(The Market-Place, as in Act I, with view of harbor at back. A crowd of Puritan men and women, intermingled with men from forest settlements. Sailors interspersed among crowd. Chillingworth is seen at one side, conferring closely with the Bristol Shipmaster. A crowd of English Pilgrims, just arriving at the Market Place. During their song Chillingworth leaves the Shipmaster and disappears in the crowd.)
