Comment: This piece highlights the right to life, to freedom of thought, conscience, expression, religion and association. These rights are all guaranteed by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of 1948. Although these texts have been ratified by several states in the world, the rights and freedoms of many women and men continue to be violated and despoiled. With this in mind, it is up to the women and men whose rights are being violated to stand up ... (more online)
